OPPORTUNITY FOR WELL-TO-DO AMERICANS

Farmers With Some Capital Recommended by Secretary Straus to Come to the Hawaiian Islands.

"Well-to-do American laborers, I think, would find it to their advantage to go there (the Hawaiian Islands), as the territorial government is desirous of giving them every facility to establish themselves, especially those who follow agricultural pursuits."—Oscar S. Straus, Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

In the Chicago Post, of September 3, Secretary Straus gives his impressions of Hawaii, expressing the idea that American agriculturists would prosper by coming to these islands. The interview is as follows:

Roosevelt or Taft is the demand of and he has addressed himself to the Republicans of the great West and Northwest, according to Oscar S. Straus, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, who arrived in Chicago today from the Hawaiian Islands, and who has been pursuing his course leisurely toward the East.

Beyond that one statement, however, the secretary would not talk much of politics.

"The sentiment that I have found in every section of the country I have visited is an enthusiastic wish and determined desire for Roosevelt," said Mr. Straus, "and everybody knows of the position the President had taken. They all seemed to hope that conditions would compel him to accept the nomination. The only other name that I heard in connection with the presidency was Taft."

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT.
Regarding his trip generally the secretary was willing to talk more freely, and was enthusiastic over the conditions—commercial and agricultural.

"The mission of my trip," he said, "was to acquaint myself with the field work of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and to come into personal touch with the men who are performing this work. I left Washington on June 28 and from there went to Montreal and along the Canadian border to Vancouver, inspecting en route the offices at Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver and the intermediate staffs of the immigrant and steamboat inspection service.

"From Vancouver I went down the coast to Tacoma and Seattle, and thence to Portland and San Francisco. At each of these places I found the conditions of the immigrant service, the lightness of the commercial affairs generally to be satisfactory. The only complaint I heard was of the lack of labor."

FAITH IN INFORMATION BUREAU.
"I am in hopes that the new bureau, the bureau of information, which was created by the last Congress, will be of great service in advising and directing labor immigrants to the section of country where their services are in great demand. At the head of this new bureau I placed Terrence V. Powderly."

ASIATIC IMMIGRATION MUST BE RESTRICTED

Under the heading, "Hindoo No. 1000 Menacing than Japanese Immigrants," the San Francisco Bulletin says editorially:

The risks against the Hindoo laborers at Bellingham are the first symptom of a new racial problem that will affect, within a short while, the entire Pacific Coast.

Hindoo are flocking to this country in large numbers. They are accustomed to live at the point of starvation, and as laborers they will underbid not only the whites, but the Japanese as well. They are British subjects, moreover, and have the treaty rights of Englishmen.

Within a year or two the United States will be compelled by circumstances to adopt a definite and decisive policy toward Asiatic immigration and stick to it. It is inevitable that the policy of this government, no matter whether it may displace other powers, shall be one of exclusion. Students, tourists and other non-competitors in the labor market may be admitted, but laborers must be kept out.

This policy will be forced on us by the instinct of self-preservation. The opposition to the Asiatic laborer springs not from mere racial bigotry, but from a clear perception that unrestricted immigration of that kind will lead to intolerable social and industrial evils. To exclude Japanese and Hindoo may seem a harsh measure, but it is better to adopt that measure, no matter what it leads to, than to permit the development on the Pacific Coast of a situation similar to that in

NEXT MAIL FROM COAST.

The next mail from the Coast should arrive here on Tuesday by the America Maru. She will probably be off port, unless there is a big cargo for here, as it would interfere with her to a certain degree to make the slow trip down of seven days and then take on only a small cargo.

The Toyo Kisen Kaisha steamship Nippon Maru, Captain Palmer, sailed from Yokohama yesterday for San Francisco via Honolulu. She is due to arrive here a week from Saturday and should be in early in the morning.

MOTION TO STAY LOWRIE'S SUIT

Defendants Allege It Is Male
Fides and a Fishing Excursion.

Some important papers were filed yesterday in the $400,000 damage suit of W. J. Lowrie against H. P. Baldwin and the Castles. They were filed in connection with the motion of the plaintiff for an order for the defendants to produce certain papers, a motion which came up before Judge Robinson yesterday morning.

This motion asked for an order requiring the defendants to produce what the plaintiff described as the "syndicate agreement for the purchase of the Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar Co. stock," and the contract between Lowrie and the Castle Estate. It will be remembered that Lowrie in his complaint alleges that this contract, for breach of which he seeks for damages, grew out of the requirement, contracted for but not actually acquired at the time, of a control of the Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar Co.

To this motion Castle & Withington representing all the defendants except H. P. Baldwin, and Kinney and Marx representing Baldwin, filed objections, alleging that the object of the motion, as the object of the suit, was merely to get what evidence or information could be secured in aid of the suit over the same subject matter now pending in Boston.

In addition, the defendants joined in a motion for a stay of proceedings in this suit, on the ground that it was not brought in good faith but is a "fishing expedition" intended for the purpose of obtaining what evidence it might, to be used in the suit in Boston against the same parties, which suit the plaintiff refuses to discontinue, which is at issue and in which a motion has been made for a commission (Continued on Page Four.)

EASE A LITTLE ON QUARANTINE

Cabin Passengers May Land in Less Than Seven Day Period.

There need be no more seven-day steamer trips between this city and San Francisco, according to a decision made by Dr. Carl Ramus of the Marine Hospital Service, as the result of a cable message received by him yesterday from Acting Surgeon General A. H. Glennan. The text of the cable received was as follows:

"Washington, D. C.
"Dr. Carl Ramus.
"You are authorized, if in your opinion safe, to permit the landing of cabin passengers on vessels disinfected in San Francisco before the limit of seven days."

"A. H. GLENNAN,
"Acting Surgeon General."
When asked what view he would take of the matter, since it had been left to his discretion, Dr. Ramus said that he would certainly allow the cabin passengers from the vessels to land, but that in the matter of steerage passengers it was a different matter. The cable message had not given any instructions in this regard, and he would not think it a wise plan to allow them to land in less than the required period. He stated further that, while the cabin passengers would be allowed to come ashore, they would have to be transferred from the vessel outside the harbor, as no steamer coming here in less than seven days would be allowed to dock in this port till the week was up.

According to this plan, if one of the through steamers comes here, such as the Maru boats, going to the Orient, she may land her cabin passengers and mails without trouble, but steerage passengers will have to stay on board till the seven-day term is up. The passengers will have to be placed on board one of the local tugs and brought in here from outside the harbor. In this way practically all risk of infection from San Francisco will be avoided, as it is very unlikely that cabin passengers would have visited any locality where they might be subject to infection from disease.

FLORIDA WELCOMES HAWAIIAN PINES

The Jacksonville (Florida) Times-Union welcomes Hawaii into the pineapple market of the mainland as "another fool" butting in.
The first consignment of Hawaiian pines has reached Chicago, says the Florida paper, and are found acceptable.

able. At present Florida has more to do in this line than she can take care of without exertion, and she will welcome the coming of a helper. If a rival to any New England product had come over there would be hard feelings and Roosevelt would hasten to revise the tariff schedules upward to head off the stranger, but this is not so with Florida. We know when we have enough work, and if another fool will offer to divide the job we are not so unreasonable as to deny him a share of the pay. Come in, stranger, and have a seat about the hearthstone. How-are-ye?
